대화를 듣고, 여자의 의견으로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

W: Kevin, what are you doing?

M: Mom, I'm writing a letter to my sponsored child in Congo.

W: That's why you're writing in French. Your French has gotten better and better.

M: Actually, I got help from a translation program.

W: I see. [Pause] Did you check the translated text before copying it?

M: No, I didn't. Do you think I have to?

W: Yes. You'd better check the translation.

M: Well, I think the translation program does a better job than I can.

W: Not exactly. The translation could have meanings different from what you intended.

M: Hmm, you may be right. The translated text often loses the meaning of my original writing.

W: See? When translating a text with a translation program, you need to check the results.

M: Okay. Thanks for your advice.

W: I bought it a year ago. It works well and is like new as you can see from the photo.

M: Then why do you want to sell it?

W: Because I don't need it anymore. I'm moving to a place with a built-in air conditioner.

M: I see. I'd like to buy it, then. It's $400, correct?

W: That's right. When can you pick it up?

M: Maybe tomorrow. I need to find a truck to load it on first.

M: Yes. The plant will give a fresh feel to the lounge. What do you think about the banner on the wall?

W: I love it. The slogan "TO THE WORLD" goes well with the world map.

M: I hope this place helps students dream big.

W: That's cool. And the two cushions on the sofa make the atmosphere cozier.

M: You're right. Check out the square-shaped table as well.

W: Good. It can be useful. Most of all, students will love the vending machine under the clock.

M: How about an award for the class with the fewest leftovers?

W: Sounds great. But how will we find that class?

M: You could give a sticker to the students who leave nothing on their plates. And then, you can find the class with the most stickers.

W: Excellent. Could you prepare some stickers for me?

M: Sure. I'll do that for you.

M: Awesome. I'd like that as well.

W: Excellent choice. Then you'll have the Supreme plan with the OTT service, right?

M: Correct. Can I get a discount?

M: I agree. By the way, it says that there's a limit of 100 people.

W: Oh, we must hurry. Look! Registration starts this Saturday.

M: Honey, what are you looking at?

W: It's a brochure for a new calendar. Why don't we choose one together?

M: Great. How much do you want to spend?

W: I think more than $20 is not reasonable.

M: Agreed. How about trying a new format instead of a wall calendar? We've only used wall calendars so far.

W: Good idea. Let's pick the standing desk format, then.

M: Okay. And I prefer one that's made of recyclable paper.

W: Me, too. It's more eco-friendly than those that cannot be recycled.

M: Then, let's cross this out. Now, we have two options left. Which one do you prefer?

W: I think the classic art theme doesn't match our interior design.

M: Good point. Then, let's choose this one.

다음을 듣고, 물음에 답하시오.

W: Hello, students. Last time, we learned why it's good for us to eat fruits and veggies. But what's good for us isn't always good for animals. Today, let's find out what fruits to avoid when feeding dogs. First, grapes are known to be highly toxic to dogs. You should be careful because even a single grape can cause severe health damage. Now, let's take a look at cherries. If a dog swallows their seeds, the dog is likely to have difficulties breathing. Next, if your dog doesn't eat avocados, it would be for the best. That's because eating large amounts of avocados can make your dog sick. Finally, don't let your dog snack on grapefruits. The fruit contains so much acid that some dogs can develop stomach problems. Now, you may understand why some fruits are said to be harmful to dogs. I hope this information will help you and your dog in living a happy life.
